green beat INITIATIVE RADIO

RATIONALE

In 2020, DepEd DRRMS and the Association of the Young Environmental Journalists (AYEJ) conducted the pilot-training of The Green Beat Initiative (TGBI): An Environmental Journalism Online Training for High School Campus Journalists and School Paper Advisers.

40 junior high school campus journalists and 40 school paper advisers completed the training focused on news and feature writing.

In 2021, 40 written articles have been published on media outlets, including school and local paper, and even national media outlet.

Selected campus journalists who have completed the course also contributed in the 4th National Climate Change Conference and the DepEd Earth Day Celebration 2021 as part of the Press Team. Their written works have been published in the DepEd Official Website.

ABOUT THE GREEN BEAT INITIATIVE RADIO

In 2021, DepEd DRRMS and AYEJ hopes to proceed with the second phase of the TGBI by focusing on radio broadcasting .

TGBI Radio will train 20 school paper advisers who completed the pilot-training in 2020.

The school paper advisers will then teach 7 campus journalists of the content of the training.

At the end of the training, each school publication will produce 15 10-minute radio magazine shows to be broadcasted on local radio stations and streamed as a podcast on the 5th National Climate Change Conference on November 19-25, 2021.

ABOUT THE GREEN BEAT INITIATIVE RADIO

The selection process was based on the performance and outputs submitted weekly by the advisers and their participating campus journalists.

The training will be conducted in Manila Bay Rehabilitation Area in accordance with the Supreme Court Mandamus on Manila Bay (G.R. 171947-48) directing 13 government agencies to clean up, rehabilitate, and preserve Manila Bay.

OBJECTIVES

- Develop additional unit on radio broadcasting as part of the TGBI;
- Equip school paper advisers about the principles of developing environmental stories in audio form for them to teach the campus journalists;
- Produce 15 10-minute radio shows;
- Facilitate and encourage collaboration between school papers and the local media scene; and
- Increase environmental and climate change awareness its impact and adaptation strategies in communities.

OUTPUT

- Training course pack with additional unit for radio
- Teaching guide for teachers
- 15 10-minute radio shows

TRAINING DETAILS

Due to the pandemic, TGBI Radio will be conducted online with a blend of synchronous and asynchronous learning approach. The school paper advisers will complete the weekly activities posted on the DepEd LMS every Monday-Thursday and every Friday at 2 p.m., they will attend a virtual synchronous session facilitated by AYEJ via Zoom.

In addition, the trained school paper advisers will be guided by the facilitators to conduct the training to their campus journalists. Every weekday, the students will complete the tasks posted on the DepEd LMS. And every Saturday, the campus journalists will attend a virtual synchronous session facilitated by their school paper advisers. The TGBI facilitators will be on call every Saturday for synchronous sessions, and will observe the sessions.
